NATIONAL LISTING OF VALIDATED BRUCELLOSIS-FREE HERDS

The nationwide acceptance of the Validated Brucellosis-Free Herd plan among swine producers is exemplified by the 64.8 percent increase in the past nine months of the number of Validated Herds. This first revision of the National Listing contains the names of 1,545 herd owners located in 37 States and Puerto Rico, compared to 937 herds from 32 States in the original listing issued nine months ago.

Swine herds are Validated or Revalidated Brucellosis-Free every month of the year. The herds listed are those that have been reported from the various States as of April 15, 1964. Qualified swine herd owners receive a certificate and a metal sign and both will indicate when the Validated Brucellosis-Free Herd eligibility period ends.

Herd Validation Plan

A swine herd that completes two consecutive negative brucellosis blood tests of all breeding animals, six months of age or over, is designated as a Validated Brucellosis-Free Herd. The tests must be 30 to 90 days apart. Validation is effective for a 12 month period of time and applies to the offspring of all breeding animals tested, including Specific Pathogen-Free (SPF) pigs from such herds. Herds may be revalidated for an additional 12 month period upon completion of an annual negative herd test.

Swine herds are Validated Brucellosis-Free under procedures recommended by the United States Livestock Sanitary Association and approved by the United States Department of Agriculture and the cooperating States.

For information concerning swine brucellosis eradication procedures and the Validated Brucellosis-Free Herd program contact your county agent, vocational agricultural teachers, veterinarian, or your State-Federal Animal Disease Eradication representatives.

Area Validation Plan

Areas may qualify as Validated Brucellosis-Free for a period of 3 years provided all breeding herds in the eradication area qualify under one of the following: (1) Negative herd test, in which all breeding swine 6 months of age or older are tested within the 18 month period of time prior to the date Validation is requested for the area. (Owners desiring a Validated Brucellosis-Free Herd must have a second negative herd test 30 to 90 days after the first); (2) Establish negative herd status under the Market Swine Testing Program as follows: Each year for not less than 3 years, 10 percent of the breeding swine or a minimum of one animal, whichever is the greater, shall be blood tested.

Three States, Georgia, California and Vermont, have Validated Brucellosis-Free Area programs. The first area in the nation to qualify as brucellosis-free was Dooly County, Georgia. California organized the first county-by-county swine brucellosis eradication program and has qualified 25 of the 58 counties in the State as Validated Brucellosis-Free Areas. Vermont established the entire State as an eradication area and 11 of the 14 counties of the State are Validated Brucellosis-Free Areas. Hawaii, Nevada and Utah plan to adopt the area eradication program during 1964.

Validated Brucellosis-Free Herds in Interstate Movement

At the present time, 48 States will accept breeding swine from Validated Brucellosis-Free Herds in interstate movement without further blood tests. This will eliminate the expense of additional tests formerly required when breeding stock was transported across State lines.

Most States require that breeding swine entering the State be negative to the brucellosis test within 30 days prior to date of entry or originate in a Validated Brucellosis-Free Herd. Only Alaska, Colorado and Puerto Rico require that breeding swine from a Validated Brucellosis-Free Herd be retested within 30 days prior to entry. Swine producers shipping swine interstate should contact officials of the State of destination for other entry requirements.

CAUSE OF SWINE BRUCELLOSIS...

Swine brucellosis is caused by Brucella suis, a strain of bacteria which also can cause human brucellosis, or undulant fever. This disease is an important public health problem which affects farmers, livestock handlers, meat processors, and butchers. In 1960, some 65 percent of the human brucellosis reported in the United States was thought to be of swine origin. This is a notable change since 1957, when 60 percent was of cattle origin and only 40 percent of swine origin. Attention is thus focused on swine as the remaining reservoir of the disease.

SYMPTOMS OF SWINE BRUCELLOSIS...

Symptoms are not a reliable guide for detecting the disease because they may vary from animal to animal--and in some cases do not appear at all. For this reason, swine brucellosis exists in many herds without being suspected. Major symptoms are:

Failure to settle. Infected sows and gilts often come back into heat 4 to 8 weeks after breeding because of abortions which occur so early they are not noticed.

Abortions, weak pigs. Abortions can occur at any stage of pregnancy. Birth of stillborn or weak pigs also are common. Sows that have aborted once usually farrow normal litters thereafter, although they remain as carriers and spreaders of the disease.

Lameness, stiffness of joints. Infection sometimes localizes in joints and bones, causing joint swelling, lameness and posterior paralysis.

Sterility. Swine brucellosis can cause either temporary or permanent sterility in both sows and boars. Don't wait for symptoms to appear. Blood test all adult animals in your herd on a regular basis. This is the only certain procedure available to determine if infection is present in your herd.

ECONOMIC LOSSES...

Losses to the Livestock Industry due to swine brucellosis are approximately 10 million dollars annually.

Purchase boars--and other replacement breeding stock--from Validated Brucellosis-Free Herds. If boars are purchased from nontested herds, blood test all additions at the time of purchase and again thirty (30) days later. Keep new animals isolated until both tests prove them to be free from infection. This will provide some protection against introducing swine brucellosis into your herd.
